February 6, 2007 Palatine, Illinois -- OSP EXPO & AT&T West today announced a stellar lineup of top network executives to address 4000+ delegates at its 2007 event. AT&T West Speakers include: Tim Harden, CEO; Bill Huber, Sr. Vice President, Network Services; Vice President Network Engineering West, Polly Bessel; President Network Operations; Jim Entwisle, Vice President Special Service Operations; Bill Chubb, Vice President Service Operations, South; Byron McDaniel, Vice President, Construction & Engineering; and Terri Lindsay, Vice President, Service Operations, North. OSP EXPO will be held August 28-30, 2007 in California at San Jose's McEnergy Convention Center.

OSP EXPO 2007, the industry leader in telecom network education, will bring together OSP professionals from the ILEC, IOC and CLEC communities delivering over 250 of the latest OSP technologies, 25+ regular and advanced seminars offering attendees the opportunity to receive continuing education credits and CUSA points from the National Safety Council. The robust educational tracks will focus on 'HOW-TO learning on topics such as: Triple Play/IPTV Migration for the Legacy Infrastructure, FTTC/FTTN/FTTP Networks, Network Planning/Engineering and Construction Realities, The Last Mile and The Last 50 Feet Collide, Technical Troubleshooting and Network Management for OSP Operational Efficiencies, OSP Safety in the Real World.

OSP EXPO's opening keynote event by Tim Harden, President & CEO, AT&T West will take place on Wednesday, August 29th. On Thursday, August 30th, AT&T West's, Network Services, Sr. Vice President, Bill Huber will provide the day 2 keynote, followed by Sharon Vollman, VP/Editorial Director, OSP Magazine, facilitating a panel discussion comprised of the Network Services West Vice Presidents. "This year's keynotes will take place in today's digital living room and are sure to address the evolving infrastructures and technological changes providers currently face within their respective disciplines," said Sharon Vollman, VP/Editorial Director, OSP®.

Additionally, OSP EXPO 2007 will host the AT&T West Management Calibration Meeting for 360 of its 2nd level managers. The network management will be immersed in all OSP EXPO offerings as well as closed door AT&T and vendor sponsored events. "Partnering with the OSP team for a third consecutive year ensures AT&T a successful event: we'll get the very best in content, event expertise, and participation from the vendor community," said Tim Harden, CEO, AT&T West. "We're very pleased with this collaborative partnership."
